

Vintage Paper & Ephemera Unboxing – Which Craft Do You Do

We are totally into making junk journals at the moment. They are less structured than mini-albums so making them is a freeing experience.

However, we have one big issue when it comes to making junk journals and that is finding the vintage paper and ephemera to add to the journal to make it something special. Sure you can scour antique stores and op shops but it can take a while to build up your collection.

This is why I am so glad we came across Natasa's videos on her 'Treasure Books' Tube channel. She was doing an unboxing of a paper and ephemera haul that was sent to her by an online store called 'Which Craft Do You Do'. The stuff in the box was just amazing so off we went to their online store to take a look.

Boy oh boy, did we have fun deciding what to get. The store is jam-packed with vintage papers, ephemera, handmade goodies, and journal-making bits and pieces. They also have a nice range of Tim Holtz idea-ology gear at very reasonable prices. Shipping was quick and it wasn't too many days before our parcel arrived. There were some extra die cuts attached to the package.

Watch the unboxing video here or scroll down for photos and more detail

(Can't see the video? You might have an adblocker installed.)

In our order we received:

- The Vintage Dictionary pages pack
- 2 altered notebooks
- Vintage themed supply and Ephemera folder
- Handmade Junk Journal and supply kit
- An assortment of Tim Holtz keys, clasps, mini gears, and paper pads

Vintage Dictionary Pages Pack

The Vintage Dictionary pages pack included over 65 vintage dictionary pages from more than a number of different publications. Included are pages from medical dictionaries, foreign language dictionaries, thesaurus, and biographical dictionaries. These text pages are just the thing for background pieces to add interest to our vintage projects. They are in a variety of colors so we have plenty of choices on where to use them.

Altered Notebooks

These altered notebooks are really nice. They have a soft cover and they each have around 120 pages for journaling, and to decorate with lots of lovely ephemera. I can certainly see plenty of potential dressing up these lovely notebooks.

Vintage Themed Ephemera Pack

The ephemera pack is jammed pack with gorgeous goodies as you can see below and in the video.

Handmade Junk Journal and Supply Kit.

Can't wait to get started on this journal. The kit came well wrapped and tied with Sari Silk ribbon and a solid key attached. Beautifully presented.

Here are some of the items included to make up the junk journal :

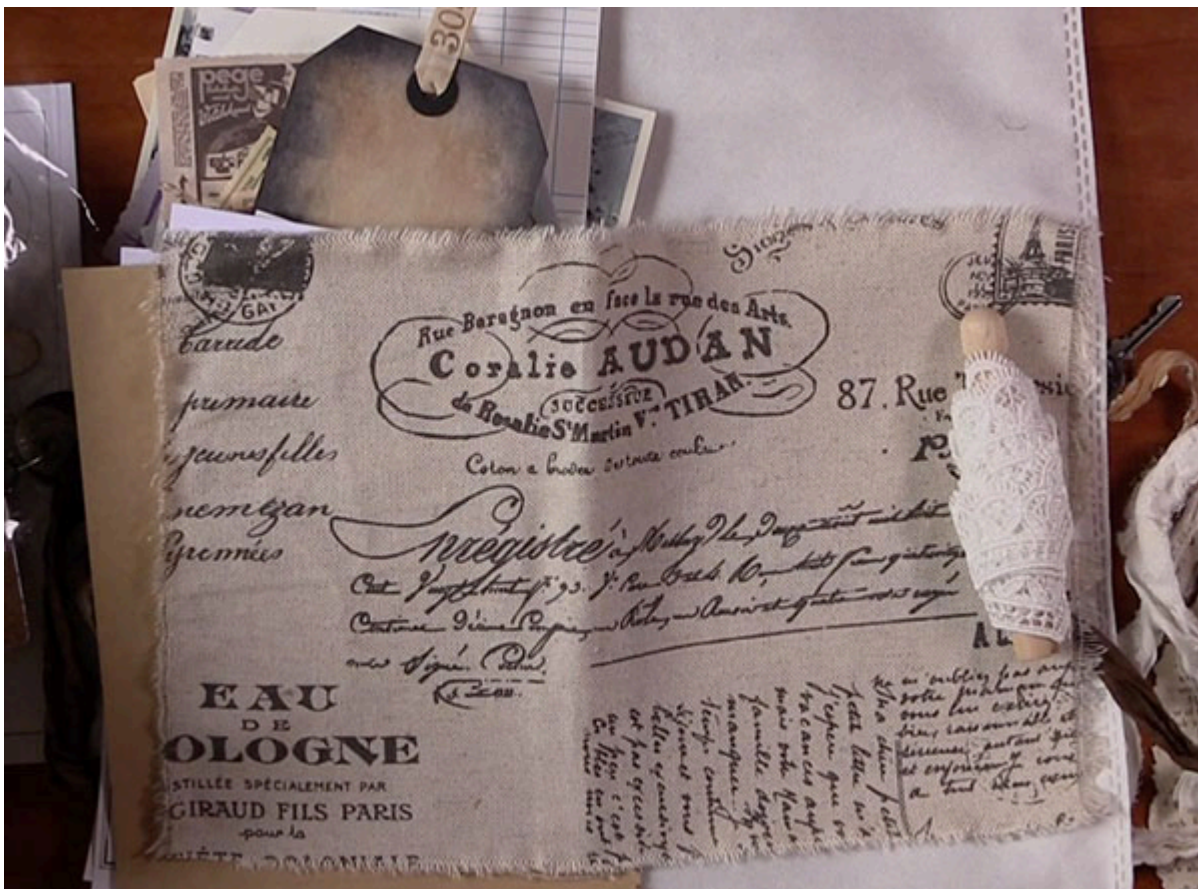

Bits and bobs sent in a lovely container.

A plethora of tickets, tags, receipts, and all those lovely bits that go into making up a junk journal of interesting bits and pieces.

And finally, some pretty lace wrapped around a wooden peg and the canvas material to make the cover of the journal.

Well, I have to say we are delighted with the contents. It certainly has meant that we are on our way to having a nice variety of 'stuff' to make our junk journals with.

'Which Craft Do You Do' ship internationally as well as locally here in Australia. We have ordered more from them and will certainly be looking to buy more ephemera.

You can check out their website here – WhichCraftDoYouDo.com